The Department of Education and Youth is conducting its first ever large-scale survey asking parents and guardians to share their preferences about primary schools. The 5-minute confidential survey asks three main questions:

1. whether you prefer co-educational or single-sex schools,
2. denominational (religious) or multi-denominational (non-religious) schools,
- 3, education through English or Irish.

The survey closes on 16 December 2025, and the results will help the Department plan future education provision at primary level across Ireland.
